Hopes Rise For Break In Deadlock

Munsan, (AP) — An unexpected Communist announcement stirred up hope today for a break in the critical deadlock over prisoner exchange—the major issue blocking an armistice in the Korean War.

The Chinese Reds said they conditionally recognized the Geneva Conventions banning germ warfare and setting rules for treatment of war prisoners.

The announcement over Red China's Peiping radio placed a new aspect on the truce negotiations at Panmunjom, but its exact effect on the long-stalled talks was not known.

The U. N. Command delegation refused to comment on the broadcast or offer an interpretation of it.

It came shortly before the Communists requested yesterday a two-day additional recess in secret negotiations.

The Communists asked that the recess continue until 11 a.m. Friday. The U. N. Command seemed to have anticipated the Red request and agreed at once. The talks have been in recess since Monday.

Peiping radio announced that Communist China now adhered to the 1949 Geneva Convention on prisoners of war, with certain reservations.

The announcement, made by Red China's number two man, Foreign Minister Chou En-lai, seemed to suggest that the Communists might be willing to agree to transfer of prisoners, who refused repatriation, to a mutually agreeable third power or a "substitute."

If this is so, it might pave the way for settlement of the deadlock over prisoner repatriation.

Informed diplomats in London said Red China has outlived to India some ideas for handling the prisoner issue, but that thus far they have produced no basis for a settlement acceptable to Western powers.

In Washington, Secretary of State Acheson charged the Chinese Communists with violating the Geneva Conventions regarding prisoners.

The Allies insist that no prisoner in U. N. hands will be forced to return to North Korea or China against his will. The Reds demand return of all Allied-held captives. More than half of the 170,000 Communist prisoners in U. N. camps have said they would resist return to Communist rule. It is the dispute over those prisoners that blocks a truce.

Airline Pilots Report Seeing Eight 'Saucers'

Washington, (AP) — Two airline pilots who said they saw eight flying saucers over Virginia Tuesday night have made a preliminary report to the Air Force's technical intelligence center at Dayton, O.

A brief Air Force statement yesterday said that "a complete written report is expected to follow" and until it is received "no evaluation of this reported sighting" can be made.

The pilots—First Officers W. B. Nash and W. H. Fortenberry—reported in Miami that the eight saucers passed directly beneath their Pan American Airways DC-4 over Chesapeake Bay.

They described the objects as 100 feet in diameter, "glowing like red hot coals," and traveling 1,000 miles an hour.

Education-Training Program Extended To Nearly Million Veterans Of Korean Conflict

Washington, (AP) — President Truman's signature yesterday cleared the way for veterans discharged since fighting began in Korea to share in benefits amounting to about a billion dollars a year.

The Veterans Administration reported there were 870,000 such veterans on May 31, with the number increasing daily.

The law gives new veterans an education and training program on the order of that received by World War II veterans.

But there are some changes—in the amounts of money available and in the way the program is to be run.

The act also provides for mustering-out pay, unemployment benefits of $26 a week up to a total of 26 weeks, and financial backing for home and business loans.

U. S. Challenged Red China To Abide By Geneva Treaty

Washington, (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson yesterday skeptically challenged the Chinese Communists to live up to the Geneva treaty governing treatment of war prisoners, which Peiping says it is ready to recognize conditionally.

Murray Denies He's Ready To Accept Offer

Pittsburgh, (AP) — No one lifted a finger to end the steel strike yesterday and reports of a secret settlement were scoffed at by union aides.

Labor and industry have no plans for new bargaining sessions. The White House has not made a move to get them together again.

A New York State chain of newspapers published a story which said the striking CIO United Steelworkers will accept the industry's last offer and announce the end of the strike at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago on Monday.

Philip Murray, president of the steelworkers, said the report isn't true. He also scoffed at reports that he is boosting Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as a Democratic presidential choice with Ellis Arnall, Office of Price Stabilization head, as the vice presidential candidate.

"That simply isn't true," said Murray. "I'm not announcing support of anyone for anything at this time."

County-Bred Mice Play Important Role In Nation's Science Research

By Leonard Randolph

Mrs. Glenn Warner is "scared to death" of mice—and it's too bad, because she has nearly 20,000 of them in her backyard.

Mrs. Warner is the wife of an East Stroudsburg businessman whose business is mice.

The Warners raise the mice for experimental purposes in the laboratories of large drug companies—a contribution to scientific research which has proved invaluable.

Facilities for raising the research rodents are maintained in back of the Warner home on Brookside Ave., East Stroudsburg.

The history of the business dates back to 1938. At that time the United States — and, of course, Monroe County—were emerging from a depression period.

Glenn—one of the two sons of George Warner—was then working at the Swiftwater laboratories of the National Drug Co.

The superintendent of the factory talked to Glenn about the need for white mice for research conducted by the company at its Swiftwater plant. Glenn, in turn, talked it over with his brother Anson and their father.

The two brothers built some boxes, obtained "breeders" and the business was begun.

George Warner—who will be 79 in September — recalls that the business started out "very small" with about a half-dozen boxes.

"Then we just kept adding, adding," Mr. Warner says, "until finally we had to expand." The elder Warner worked at Cramer Lumber Co. during the first years of the "experiment," spending most of his nights taking care of the mice.

Finally, in 1942, he quit the lumber company to devote full time to Brookside Farm. The business had grown to 400 boxes containing 2400 rodents.

Ten years later, the actual management of the business is controlled by Glenn.

Inside the "mouse house" there are 900 boxes and 480 glass jars. Population figures are around 8,000 adults.

In addition to these adult mice or "breeders" the census jumps upward an average of 12,000 young mice every week—two to three thousand of which are removed for shipment each time period.

Considering the rate of multiplication it's probably a very good thing that the demand for white mice keeps pace with the supply. If not, it would take an Einstein to keep the head count.

Most of the orders filled by Brookside Farm come from the National Drug Co. at Swiftwater and the drug firm of Davies and Nagle in New York. There are also small accounts with individual firms.

The specifications for shipment of the mice are rigid. First of all—males and females must be kept separated.

In many instances the mice are ordered by weight—varying in size from six to 24 grams (slightly less than an ounce) each.

These weights are also divided into four main categories: 6 to 10 grams; 10 to 14 grams; 14 to 16 grams and 16 to 24 grams.

Workers at the farm have become so adept at handling the mice that they now can almost "size" the animal without actually weighing it.

Through experience the mice handlers have learned that they don't dare put two adult males in one box "no matter how many females here may be."

When the two males are together they "do nothing but fight" each other and pay no attention to the females. In the interest of good business, only one adult male goes in each "breeder" container.

On the other hand, Warner points out, an adult male will tolerate a young male without any disturbance whatever.

Incubation periods for adult female mice is established at three weeks with a similar period for nursing of the young. Since the rodents seldom breed during the nursing time, this places a time limit of "about nine weeks" between litters. A litter may bring as many as 14 mice at one time into the fold.

Records submitted to the office of District Forester E. C. Pyle by Dixon Miller, caretaker on the Dilldown Watershed experiment station near Effort, shows that the greatest rainfall on the watershed for the one and a half day period July 8 and 9 totaled 9.72 inches, which is probably a record rainfall for eastern United States in this short a period.

This is far greater than twice the amount of rain ever recorded having fallen over one period for this watershed since its establishment. Had such a rainfall been widespread over the entire northern section of any river basin, no amount of flood control, dams or river bank structures could have held the immense volume of water in this short a period.

"We were indeed fortunate that such a rainfall was more or less localized along the northern plateau," Pyle said.

Two Boys Drown

Danora, Pa., (AP) — Two young boys drowned yesterday in the Monongahela River when the inner tube they were riding in collapsed. A third boy swam to safety.

White House announcement of the President's trip to the hospital added credence to Truman's repeated insistence he would not accept Democratic nomination for a reelection campaign. Political observers argued that a president contemplating a new election bid would hardly have permitted announcement of even a presidential headache.

Truman first became ill Sunday. The White House disclosed the next day that he was suffering from a "mild virus infection" and that he had canceled his engagement list for that day. Tuesday's engagements also were canceled.

Eight Monroe County men left yesterday morning for Wilkes-Barre for induction into the Armed Forces.

Ordered to report for service by Local Board 105, Selective Service, were George I. Hooper and Patrick F. Bergeron, of Stroudsburg; Harold R. Miller, Gard H. O'Hara Jr., Lawrence J. Lesoine and Gunter A. Tholemann Jr., of East Stroudsburg; James C. Werkheiser, of Tannersville, and Alfred E. Correll of Saylorsburg.

Mine Safety Bill Signed

Washington, (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Mines was given the power to close down dangerous coal mines under a law signed yesterday by President Truman.

From now on federal inspectors may order the closing of mines when they find there is imminent danger from explosion, flood, fire or the operation of unsafe hoists or underground vehicles.

Before this, federal inspectors could only make recommendations on needed safety measures but could not require compliance.

Jury Indicts Scranton Man

Washington, (AP) — For his refusal to answer questions put to him by the Kefauver Crime Committee last year, Joseph E. Baldassari, of Scranton, Pa., was indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury for contempt of Congress.

The Senate Crime Committee's report of crime in Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties, Pa., said it had information that Baldassari and his brother, Al, "are engaged in an extensive gambling enterprise operation under official sanction."

Baldassari was accused of refusing to tell the crime investigating committee about slot machine operations in Scranton, whether he ever had been arrested and whether he had engaged in any legitimate business.

Washington, (AP) Secretary of State Acheson said yesterday a proposal for Republican and Democratic chiefs to consult on foreign policy during the next six months—to avoid an era of uncertainty and indecision at home and abroad—is a very important matter. But he checked any action on the idea to the White House.

No-Retreat Stand Taken By President

Chicago, (AP) — President Truman demanded last night that there be "no betrayal of the New Deal or the Fair Deal" at the Democratic National Convention which opens Monday.

Truman's no-retreat stand on the record of five Democratic administrations took the form of a message to delegates who are here and on the way to pick the Democratic nominee for the 1952 presidential race against Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

It hit the convention scene at a time when Democratic platform makers were setting up the line for another civil rights battle which could splinter the party again, as in 1948.

Rival candidates looked over the Truman statement for signs that it might be an omen of a presidential blessing for one of them.

Two of the hopefuls, Sens. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Richard B. Russell of Georgia, flew into town as the advance guard for nearly a score of others. Each predicted the nomination will be his within a few ballots.

Russell did an about-face on labor legislation. He came out for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law for which he twice voted, once on passage and again to override Truman's veto.

Kefauver told a news conference his record on Taft-Hartley had been established for a long time. He said Taft-Hartley is a bad law and:

"I voted against Taft-Hartley and I voted for repeal."

Of all the candidates in the field, Mutual Security Director Averell Harriman has committed himself most solidly to carrying on the "New Deal-Fair Deal." Yet the President reportedly has favored Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois more than any other.

Stevenson, however, appeared to be erasing himself from the picture more and more. His most vocal supporter, Illinois National Committeeman Jacob Arvey, said tonight he has "no hope at all" of getting Stevenson to run.

Truman said the decision made at Chicago "will determine whether our country continues to go forward, with increasing freedom and greater opportunity for all . . . whether the free world continues to march forward on the road to a permanent peace."

Walter Thinks Majority Of Pennsylvania's Delegates To Support Governor Stevenson

Illinois Gov. Adlai Stevenson holds the edge over other candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination so far as Pennsylvania delegates are concerned, Rep. Francis E. Walter said last night.

Walter's eleventh-hour prediction on the eve of the Democratic convention may be considered a fairly accurate measurement of delegate feeling in the Keystone State.

An Easton lawyer who has been in Congress since 1933, Rep. Walter is the eleventh ranking Democratic member of the House of Representatives.

As such he is expected to have a great deal of influence over the State delegation and, indirectly over the convention as a whole.

Stevenson's candidacy still remains in the "draft" stage, however. The Illinois governor has stated conclusively that he "will run" if drafted—but will not "seek" the nomination.

Walter emphasized that the

The top-ranking Congressman went on to say that the Springfield executive is "one of the best in the country" in the opinion of many "well-informed persons."

Citing the governor's accomplishments during his first term in the Illinois key post, Walter called Stevenson's administration excellent and termed the midwesterner a "skilled and courageous man with a very fine understanding of the world situation" who is "intensely anti-Communist" because he is "a realist . . . and does not minimize the dangers."

"If he (Stevenson) is available, I have every reason to believe that a majority of our delegation will support him."

Walter does not undersell Estes Kefauver in his summary of presidential hopefuls who will parade before the national convention next week.

Mr. Truman Hospitalized; Political Implication Noted

Washington, (AP) — President Truman was hospitalized yesterday for the first time since he entered the White House.

Aides minimized the illness but it still carried political implications related to his stated determination not to run for reelection.

The 68-year-old President was admitted to the Army's Walter Reed Hospital after a four-day fight with what the White House called "mild virus infection."

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short said Truman "is getting very close to complete recovery" and entered the hospital for a "check-up."

Later, Maj. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, presidential physician, returned to the White House where he was asked about the health of his patient.

"He's fine—just fine," Graham said. "I hope I can keep him in the hospital for two or three days."

A few hours later a brief dispatch from Independence, Mo., reported that Mrs. Truman had left there by train for Washington after a 10-day stay at home. There was no word that her trip was related to her husband's illness, however.

The White House confirmed the departure of the "First Lady" from Missouri but said she was not summoned here.

"It was her own wish," the White House said. A spokesman added she had not previously planned to return at this time. She has been at the bedside of her ailing mother.

White House announcement of the President's trip to the hospital added credence to Truman's repeated insistence he would not accept Democratic nomination for a reelection campaign. Political observers argued that a president contemplating a new election bid would hardly have permitted announcement of even a presidential headache.

State Forest Agency Plans Aerial Survey

The Department of Forests and Waters in cooperation with the State Department of Agriculture and some other interested State agencies is undertaking an intensive survey to determine the occurrence of the dreaded oak wilt disease in Pennsylvania. The survey in the Delaware State Forest District comprising Pike, Monroe and Northampton Counties, will be conducted during the next month by means of airplane.

It is expected that a plane owned by the Department of Agriculture will conduct the survey with foresters of the district being used as spotters particularly in the oak growing regions of the district.

The aerial survey will be made in the form of strips run from one end of the county to the other, aerial photo maps will be available for spotting any areas that seem to be dead or infected in any way. These will be then checked later on the ground for definite identification of the trouble involved.

Where there is a question as to the exact disease of the infected tree, specimens will be collected and sent to laboratories of the Department of Forests and Waters, Harrisburg for identification.

In the Delaware District, Foresters Paul Drury and Eugene McNamara have been designated as spotters.

The oak wilt disease is not the common black curl as noticed commonly in the region. Black curl does not kill the oak outright but the oak wilt disease does so in one season.

This disease has not been located to date in this region but it has been spotted in the central and western part of the State. To make sure that the disease is not gaining headway along the borders of the State between New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania and along the Delaware a special air strip has been set up to cover this area along the Delaware River. This survey is expected to be completed by the middle of August.

Buck Hill Woman Dies In Hospital

Buck Hill Falls—Mrs. Ruth E. Schieker, 42, wife of George Schieker here, died Tuesday night at the General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, following a month's illness.

She was born in Tobyhanna, daughter of Jared and Martha Eckert Price, and was a member of Canadensis Methodist Church.

Surviving in addition to her husband are her father, a son, Whitely, Buck Hill Falls; three daughters, Mrs. Robert Smith, Marshalls Creek, Barbara and Patricia, at home; three grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Walter Homan, Port Stroudsburg; Miss Elva Price, Port Jervis, N. Y., and Mrs. Vincent Bivona, Hempstead, L. I.; four brothers, Fred Price, Chicago; Richard of North Massapequa, L. I.; Cpl. Benjamin Price, Long Island City, and Robert of Richmond, Va.

Services will be at 2 p. m. Friday at Canadensis Methodist Church, with Rev. Claude L. Heilmann officiating.

Friends may call at the Frey funeral home, South Sterling, after 7 p. m. Thursday, and after 1 p. m. Friday at the church. Burial will be at the East Swiftwater Cemetery.

James Gross, 74, Succumbs

James William Gross, 74, of East Stroudsburg RD 2, died yesterday in General Hospital. He was the husband of Mary A. Long Gross.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2:30 p. m., at Trexler funeral home, 116 S. Eighth St., Allentown, with interment in Highland Park Cemetery, that city.

Friends may call at the funeral home from noon Saturday until time of services.

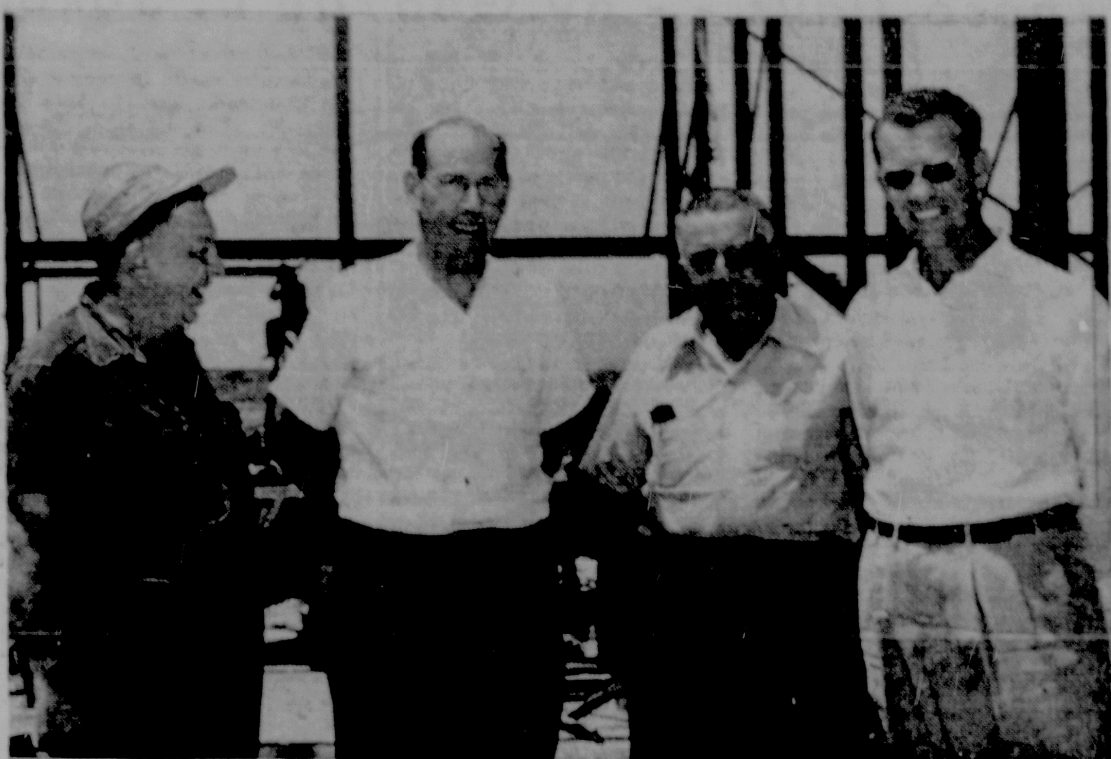

Arrangements here were in charge of Lanterman's, East Stroudsburg funeral directors.

Herring Funeral Held Yesterday

Funeral services for Edward R. Herring of Marshalls Creek were held at 2:30 p. m. yesterday in the Lanterman funeral home, East Stroudsburg.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, officiated. Interment was made in Stroudsburg Cemetery.

Palbearers were Benjamin Herring, Ellsworth Hufford, Byron Anderson and Byron Anderson Jr.

Fair Plans Advanced By Association

Plans are being laid for a 30,000 attendance at the West End Fair this year.

Members of the fair association who met Tuesday, added two new wrinkles to the fair's agenda; horseshoe pitching and log-sawing contests.

A single large dining room will be operated by Mrs. Amos Kresge, Gilbert, and Myron Snyder, Saylorsburg. Snyder and Wesley Christman, Kunkletown, will handle two sandwich stands.

The band for the fair has not yet been picked, officials said.

The final meeting before the fair opens at Gilbert August 27 will be held August 12, according to Floyd Altemose, Saylorsburg RDI, president of the association.

Some Tax Anything

Today, we are happy to report that only one of each three local governments in Pennsylvania is making use of the famous "tax anything" statute.

That is the law which gives boroughs, cities, townships and school districts the power to levy an assessment on almost anything except air and the tracks that taxpayers leave in the dirt as they wend their heavy way to the collector's office.

A recent survey of the use of the tax statute reveals some interesting figures. For instance, one borough (name not given) levies a per capita tax of $2.40 on married persons, but hikes the ante to $4.80 for those enjoying single bliss.

Of course, the results are about the same. A married man who pays the tax for both himself and wife pays $4.80 the same as a bachelor or spinster.

Of the taxes allowed under the statute, the per capita (also called the head tax) and amusement taxes are the most popular.

Head taxes in Pennsylvania range from 50 cents to $10 with most set at $5.

It is interesting to note, too, that the cities make far more use of the tax-anything law than do the boroughs and townships.

Eighty-seven per cent of the cities avail themselves of these powers, but only 34 per cent of the boroughs and 38 per cent of the townships do so. A little over half of the school districts tax anything.

Governmental costs run higher in cities, but it is good to know that almost two-thirds of our smaller municipalities are getting along without recourse to so many new forms of taxation.

Reckless Driving Aired

Oregon State Police have adopted an effective and dramatic method of promoting safer driving which might well be taken into consideration for use by our own State Police as an aid to reducing accidents.

Open highways, traffic courts, jails and hospital wards are the settings for authentic on-the-spot tape-recorded radio programs produced by the Oregon troopers to warn listeners of the serious consequences of reckless driving.

The show, titled "You Never Know," is aired by 26 radio stations in Oregon and its effectiveness in curbing careless driving in the West Coast state is attested to by the Council of State Governments.

The broadcasts include recordings of court room depositions, interviews with those hospitalized or widowed by highway smashups which make tense listening.

Preparation for these programs includes a state police officer and a civilian radio technician in a recorder car. The recorder car accompanies a regular patrol car. Usual procedure is for the recorder car to pull up behind a stopped motorist while the technician takes the microphone within range to pick up verbatim the conversation between the officer and the motorist. The same procedure is followed in accidents, with the technician picking up moans of the injured and the explanations of the shaken drivers.

It is easy to see why these programs are effective.

The idea appears to have a great deal of merit, and anything that will successfully cut down the number of accidents on our highways seems worth trying.

These Days -- By George E. Sokolsky

Convention Reform
There are those who enjoy chasing after events as though everything in life were a three-alarm fire. The Republican Convention, to me, was an irritant because I saw 2,412 Americans, delegates and alternates, regimented into a noisy mass. The same will happen at the Democratic Convention.

Television has made you a witness to this unsavory situation. You witnessed the demonstration, all but one of which were professionally organized and directed. The extra help was hired.

The only exception was the spontaneous expression of respect for Herbert Hoover. And of all things, that one was started by Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who, while not agreeing with Hoover in ideas, has the breeding that impels him to do the decorous act.

Television has already outmoded the convention. Those who watched on television saw more than anyone could have in the convention hall. Do you remember that New York delegation being pulled, with Dewey ordering people around, his face taut? Only those who watched on television could see that in all its ferocity.

The object of the direct primaries was to limit the power of the party bosses. It has not worked out that way in either party. Actually, the party boss is as strong as he ever was. This is partly due to the apathy of the people and partly to the huge cost of politics. It is estimated that pre-convention and convention activities cost the Republicans of all factions between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000. This is an absurdly high figure. It puts the Presidency up for sale.

Only one method is available for saving the convention and restoring self-respect for the delegates. That is to institute a secret ballot, using voting machines. Under the rules, delegates vote by states. Under some of the laws governing primaries, delegates pledged to a candidate must vote for him for a varying number of ballots. In such circumstances, the secret ballot loses some of its effectiveness. Since the delegates are already pledged to a candidate.

The primary laws are so varied that they have become an additional element of confusion. What is necessary is some uniformity in the primaries, but this seems difficult, if not impossible, because election laws are passed by state legislatures for their own states. There is no Federal election law, except as corrupt practices appear or are charged in the election of Federal officials. Thus, it is possible to have 48 varieties of primaries, and it is amazing how ingenious the human mind can be in devising instruments of confusion.

Nevertheless, if the delegates know that at each convention their votes would be secret; that each delegate had to vote for himself; that no other person could vote in his name—the delegate might face this responsibility with more dignity and a grater sense of usefulness. A man must feel futile and frustrated when he is voted "like a Hitler Youth."

The secret ballot and the voting machine will not make all men pure, but they will somewhat lessen, and perhaps appreciably, the power of the boss. State contests have little to do with purity; they are generally over who is to be accepted as the local party boss. That is always the issue; it is true in both parties. The party boss, in support or opposition, rarely stands for principle; he associates himself with the candidate other than the one who recognized his adversary. This is as old as the convention itself.

I defy anyone to know who actually voted in a yes or no, in viva voce vote, the delegates or the balconies. I personally watched the balconies shout, yes and no, some of them shouting both times. No presiding officer can truthfully say which way the delegates vote unless a delegation is polled.

Without a secret ballot with voting machines, the balconies may decide an issue. That may be what is nowadays called democracy; it comes closer to mob rule. You saw on television pin-point portraits of the balconies; you must have wondered how some of those persons got in at all. Yet, they could yell as loud as a delegate.

What is said here is not in criticism of Taft or Eisenhower or the Republicans. It applies to all parties and all candidates.

Try And Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

Book, magazine, and newspaper editors constantly receive insulting letters (the most violent ones are usually anonymous) from readers who differ with something said editors have printed in the course of their labors. A few of these letters obviously come from fair-minded and reasonable readers and are well worth careful answers. Most, however, come from crackpots who, with the slightest encouragement, would prolong any argument interminably.

Charlie Morton, at the Atlantic Monthly, has devised a new form that seems to baffle angry subscribers so completely that they lapse into immediate and continuing silence. "Dear Mr. So-and-So," writes Morton. "We acknowledge receipt of your note, but see no purpose in discussing the utter confusion of ideas to which you appear to have committed yourself."

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

Chicago, July 16.—Candidates for the Democratic Presidential nomination are all lined up here in Chicago waiting for President Truman to start playing tag.

Since the apparently conclusive withdrawal of Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as a candidate, most of the others are hoping that the President will do his selecting in private. All he has to do, they argue, is to pass the word along to the political bosses on whom he wants as his heir apparent.

Most of the candidates are convinced that only a miracle could chain the nomination for any one of them without the President's endorsement. The reason for their shyness in being named publicly as the President's choice, however, was expressed adequately by Stevenson.

The Illinois Governor decided that a combination of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Republican nominee and President Truman's public endorsement, would be too big a burden for any Democrat to carry. Stevenson is said to feel that anyone chosen by Mr. Truman assumes—in the public mind, at least—the mantle of the President's blunders and his political philosophy. That is too much to expect of any loyal Democrat, he is reported to have reasoned in bowing out of the contest as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Truman's hesitancy in naming his choice has resulted in a serious case of political itch on the part of some candidates. But a waiting game is the only safe one for the President to play. He must be certain that whoever is handed the nomination can be trusted. So far it appears that Mr. Truman has complete faith in only one man, W. Averell Harriman, Mutual Security Director, who hasn't been working very hard at the job lately.

The reason Mr. Truman has to be careful is that his wing of the Democratic party can't afford to have the candidate tapped for the nomination, double-cross the administration. This could be done by tearing into graft and corruption, for instance, in an acceptance speech, or by holding out an olive branch to southern Democrats after a tough Civil Rights plank has been rammed down the throats of delegates.

The fact is that hardly a Democrat alive wants to run on Mr. Truman's record. They all agree that there are many adequate campaign issues among the President's accomplishments, but they can't seem to forget the deep freezes, the milk coats and the lush tax favors for known gangsters.

The ideal presidential endorsement would be a quiet word to his political bosses, a public statement that he has no favorite and a quick trip out of Chicago. But most of the candidates feel that this is but a dream.

The President and his White House cronies want a "safe" candidate—one who will stick to the President's record, and one gracious enough to reward the right people in event of a Democratic victory in November.

The latter is the overriding issue insofar as Mr. Truman's political pals are concerned. They want another slice of the political pie if a Democrat wins. They would also feel more secure in knowing that many embarrassing documents now locked in the White House safe would be in safe hands. The very thought, for instance, of having someone in the White House who might be filled with revenge over past political slights is causing many nightmare-filled nights for White House cronies.

Assuming then that the President's chief aim in coming to Chicago is to obtain a "safe" candidate for the job, his choice is limited to two men for all practical purposes. They are Harriman and Oscar Ewing.

Mr. Truman does not trust Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, and his White House buddies are fearful of what Southern Senators would do to their reputations if Senator Russell of Georgia got the nod.

As for Senator Estes Kefauver, Mr. Truman considers him an intellectual and political inferior. Besides, the President's loyal machine bosses never know how seriously Estes takes himself as a crime buster. They fear that he might even neglect patronage to appear on television again.

At any rate, it will be Mr. Truman's decision, and Harriman and Ewing may just be stalking a dark horse for the Democrats in control of the party. If so, neither can do anything but play his role politely. They have already said time and again that whatever Mr. Truman wants is all right with them. The President assumes it will be all right with the delegates, too. We'll see.

The Dead Sea, in Palestine, and the Great Salt Lake, in Utah, are the two inland bodies of water saltier than the ocean.

On Broadway

The Headliners: Gov. Warren and his attractive family giving the mid-town swank spots some class. . . . Geo. Jessel hailing a cab by waving his Straw-Katy, one of the very few seen in these parts. . . . Prince Gilgamesh Kabussi (from the Sudan), who considers our summertime cool enough to wear his winter apparel. . . . Celeste Holm of "King and I" wrapped in a fur coat (for a fashion mag layout) in front of Sodd's as the mercury hit 95. (Publicity-mad) . . . Arthur Godfrey deciding to walk after 15 minutes of waiting for a taxi. . . . Louis Prima, the trumpet star, getting a ticket for tooting his auto horn. . . . Whittaker Chambers, author of a leading best-seller ("Witness"), browsing in a 50th Street totem-shop. . . . Jinx Falkenberg's "I Like Ike" diamond brooch.

There's a Note From Some Lady Let's not go through the hectic part again. That foolish tasting of rose petals thing. And let's eliminate the conversations. Freud-broiled and paranoic; if we dine. Then, leave us fling like other people do it. Like those who curl up easy in a flat. And have no message. Not a single message. Except "Joe called" and let it go at that. See what I mean? Yak leaves me disenchanted. It's done so well in cellars. Let it be. And no one needs to know you went to Princeton. I love you, and your secret's safe with me. Let's do it right. Let's have a ball this time. See you at ten. And bring a nice cheap wine.

Sallies In Our Alley: Jinx, who is Mrs. Tex McCrary, congratulated Mrs. Eisenhower after the nomination. "Your husband," said Jinx, "better win in November. My Tex gave up his job just to help him." . . . "My dear girl," reminded Mamie, "so did you." . . . Jerry Collins' warning: "Just in case Mr. Kefauver is nominated—there are enough displaced bookmakers in Nevada to defeat him!"

THE BAMBOOZLE CURTAIN

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

Yesterday was a very important day in our lives. It happened to be my birthday. But that isn't the reason. Not that my wife didn't remember it. She gave me some very nice presents, a lovely birthday card and a dutiful wifely kiss as she "congratulated" me.

(By the way I have never been able to discover why people congratulate you on your birthday. After fifty, every birthday is just another milestone on the road through life and you are a year closer to the I-don't-know-what.)

But as my wife kissed me she seemed a little absentminded. Her mind wasn't on the race.

Then I found out why. "Remember, dear," she said, "the junkman is coming today. Be sure to be home between eleven and twelve. I want you to make certain that I don't discard anything we want to keep."

is getting her share of Ups-downs trying to break into show biz as a thrush. . . . Current Police Dept. feud is between the Commissioner and some top aides over which hi-ranking officers are to be elevated. All-righties, Commissioner, let's have the details.

Hollywood

—by Gene Handsaker

Hollywood — Art Linklater turned 40 the other day, and he's glad of it.

Speaking as the master of ceremonies of radio's zany "People Are Funny" and informal "House Party," he told me: "In this kind of business, the older you are, the more you can get away with. You're not a smart-aleck kid any more. You can kid the women and not seem presumptuous. You can even say silly things. Tom Breneman—the late emcee of "Breakfast in Hollywood"—had a big lead on me because he was older."

At 40, Linklater is starting his twentieth year in radio. "I always wanted to see if I could retire by the time I was 40," the big, blond, hearty, self-confident star said. "I could, but actually I'll be starting my toughest season yet."

Starting Sept. 1, his "House Party" goes coast-to-coast five days a week on CBS-TV. A recording of it will follow immediately on the chain's radio stations. Additionally, Art will continue his weekly "People Are Funny" antics. He is also filming a series of 15-minute TV shows called "Linklater and the Kids."

Art, or "Link" has come a long way since the night I smashed an egg in his shaggy hair. That was at his fraternity hell-night initiation at San Diego State College, where he was one of the busiest students who ever attended.

In addition to being chairman of this and that student committee, writing a humor column on the campus paper, and playing on the championship basketball team, he supported himself.

He ate his lunch while making coffee and waldorf salads in the school cafeteria. He graded papers for a psychology professor who conducted a faculty program on station KGB. The professor got him an announcing job which enabled him to quit his other part-time work—cooking meals and keeping house for a well-to-do family.

His facility with a microphone became apparent at the San Diego, Dallas, and San Francisco fairs where, as program manager, he interviewed visitors.

Even with his full new schedule, Link has further plans. "I'd like to make another picture or two," said Art, who did one. "If I could possibly find the time, I'd like to do a Broadway play."

"I'm SO sorry I spilled bean soup on you! Weren't you the cream of tomato?"

Stroudsburg To Inaugurate Overnight Parking Regulations

Will Permit Operation Of Street Cleaner

A system of emergency overnight parking regulations will be put into effect as soon as they can be integrated with the Street Department of Stroudsburg for regular operation of the street sweeper over all streets.

Council made this decision last night. Overnight parking has been extensive all over the borough in recent months. The street cleaner has been unable to operate efficiently with a consequence some serious dirt conditions have been created.

Under the emergency plan, streets running east and west will be set up for no parking on the south side one night and no parking on the north side another night. The same principle will be utilized on streets running north and south—no parking on the east side one night and no parking on the west side another.

Once the schedule is prepared and integrated with street department forces it will be announced as an emergency police order and enforced.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss with J. R. Esh Jr., of Esh Construction Co., the matter of construction operations of the Newberry building blocking off completely a portion of the N. Sixth St. sidewalk and the Main St. sidewalk from Sixth west about 120 feet.

Mr. Esh said his construction program, temporarily held up by the steel strike requires all that space and when steel and masonry starts going up more space will be needed on Sixth St. He said traffic will flow on Sixth St., except for brief periods when huge steel beams are being swung into place.

Esh agreed to swing the high board fence on Main St. back to allow greater space for pedestrians, but maintained his need for space on Sixth St. made a request for a temporary sidewalk unreasonable.

The matter came before council as the result of a letter from Williams & Williams, Stroudsburg attorneys, representing Park Market interests.

Councilman Edward Doran said Park Market and other merchants along the street are "losing business" because the sidewalk is blocked.

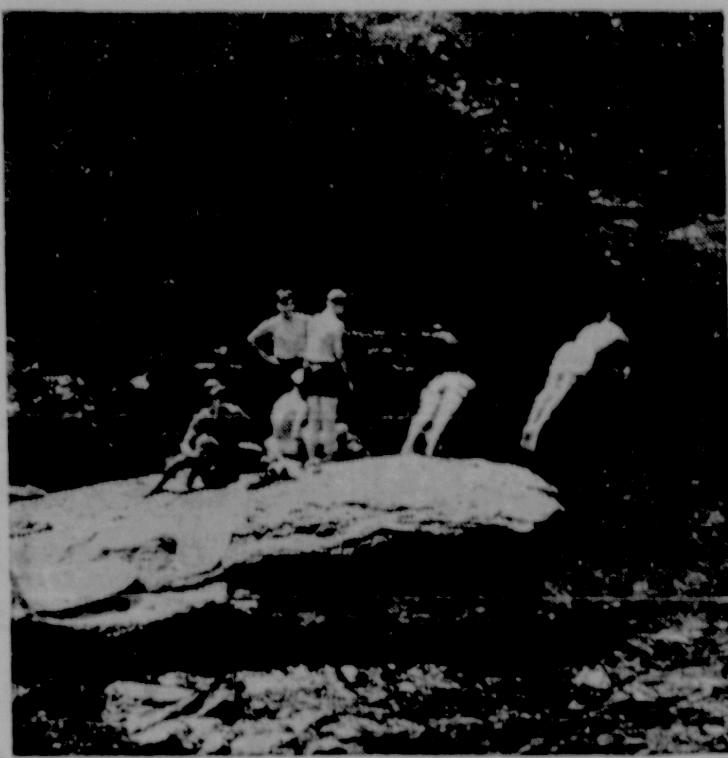

Attorney George T. Robinson outlined the legal background of the situation for Mr. Esh's benefit. It boiled down to this point—either council could take action under existing law against Esh for blocking a thoroughfare or sidewalk, or not take action, and, further, any citizen, regardless of councilman action, can do the same thing.

Councilman Doran made a motion that action be taken against Esh Construction Co. for blocking a sidewalk. There was no second to the motion.

Council approved occupation and per capita tax exonerations of $1,572.57 presented by Tax Collector Kitchen, the only exonerations in a duplicate of more than $104,000.

Treasury Position

Washington, (AP)—The position of the Treasury July 14: Net budget receipts $100,195,237.77, budget expenditures $206,464,819.66, cash balance $8,571,775,424.50.

MONROE COUNTY went into its sixth day of the current hot-spell yesterday and these six youngsters went into McMichael's Creek. McMichael's ran off with top honors in yesterday's beat-the-heat derby. Citizens of all age brackets sought the swift cooling currents from the State Bridge in Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg all the way up to Stokes Mill. Others sought the relief of showers, pools, and cold drinks. (Daily Record Photo)

Civil Defense Leaders Map 'Disaster Day' Preparations

In World War Two "D-Day" meant the start of a battle toward victory.

"D-Day" for Monroe County has another meaning. It's Civil Defense's abbreviation for "Disaster Day."

A D-Day plan is already on the boards, it was explained last night at a meeting of CD's assistant director Jack Anderson, Zone 2 director Franklin Weller and Stroudsburg CD chief Russell Williams.

The meeting was called by Weller to go over Zone 2's part in the county's D-Day plan.

Absent were Carl Dennis, Hamilton Township director; Stewart Gordon, Stroud Township director, and Harry Werkheiser, Pocono Township director, according to Anderson.

The meeting went on regardless. Briefly, this is what zone directors will do if and when D-Day arrives in this county:

Send auxiliary police to previously assigned county entrances; put first aid station personnel on a 24-hour basis; alert reception center clerks to get the center in operation; send auxiliary police to important highway intersections; order CD radios to go on CD frequencies immediately; make liaison between township, borough and county CD directors.

Most of the meeting last night was devoted to going over details of the various CD operations for D-Day.

Councilman Doran made a motion that action be taken against Esh Construction Co. for blocking a sidewalk. There was no second to the motion.

Council approved occupation and per capita tax exonerations of $1,572.57 presented by Tax Collector Kitchen, the only exonerations in a duplicate of more than $104,000.

Exception To Be Filed By Track Owners

Russell Mervine, counsel for the West End Race track, said yesterday he plans to file an exception to a court order shutting down the track.

The opinion and decree granting plaintiffs a permanent injunction against operation of the Gilbert track was handed down by President Judge Fred W. Davis Tuesday afternoon.

Mervine said he doesn't know exactly when he'll file the exception but thinks it will be next week.

The half-mile dirt track on which stock car races have been conducted since June last year—during the racing season—has been the object of a legal battle between Caroline and Joseph Riboldi, operators, and two Gilbert churches, the Salem Evangelical and the Salem Lutheran.

The church groups contended the races caused oppressive noise and dirt and there was danger of crashes because the track is at one point about 50 feet from the Guild Hall of one church.

County Native Dies Of Burns

Mrs. Dorothy Horack, 48, Weissport, died at a Lehighton hospital Tuesday as a result of self-inflicted burns.

A certificate of suicide was issued by the Carbon County Coroner. Authorities said Mrs. Horack poured kerosene on her clothes and set them afire on Monday. The woman gave no explanation for her act.

She was born in Stroudsburg, a daughter of the late Miriam and Bertha Rinker Heller, and had lived in Weissport 30 years. She leaves her husband and five children.

Bus Company To Use Basic 15-Cent Fare

Harrisburg, (AP)—The Delaware Valley Transportation Co., Stroudsburg, was given permission by the Public Utility Commission yesterday to raise its bus fares by $2,782 a year, starting July 20.

The utility will eliminate an 11 2/3-cent token and start using a basic 15-cent cash fare.

The firm operates bus service in the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area. Its taxi service rates in the same area are unchanged.

Man Succumbs At Son's Home

Harry F. Thorp, 62, of 1863 E. Cornwall St., Philadelphia, died at 4:30 p. m. yesterday at the home of his son, Harry F. Thorp Jr., at Mount Pocono.

A retired printer, he had been spending a vacation with his son and daughter-in-law.

Surviving are his wife, Sylvia, and son Harry.

The body will be transferred to Philadelphia for services and burial.

Two Couples Seek Licenses

Applying for marriage licenses at the courthouse yesterday were: Earl F. Warner and Jeanne C. Slutter, both of Stroudsburg and Joseph Nessel Jr., of Palmerton, and Iva M. Smith, Gilbert.

Dr. H. M. Saxon will be out of town from July 16th until July 20th, inclusive.—Adv.

Storage Wall Convenient In Small Home

To compensate for the storage space sacrificed in an effort to keep down the cost of many of the small homes now being built, "storage walls" in great variety are appearing on the market. They're a boon to the family that has personal belongings to stow away and no attic—in some cases no basement, either—in which to stow them.

A storage wall is a bank of open shelves, drawers or closets or a combination of all three, which serves as a partition between rooms or between different parts of the same room. Such walls come in units of various shapes and sizes and, by making a judicious selection, the home owner can assemble one that exactly meets his needs.

Can Be Moved Around
The storage wall is really a piece of furniture—not a structural part of the house—and can be moved around, although not as easily as ordinary furniture can be moved.

The units are specially designed for specific purposes—to accommodate books, linens, clothes, dishes, sports equipment, toys, phonograph records, thus providing maximum storage facilities in a minimum amount of space.

Storage walls that are accessible from either side can be obtained; thus the same wall may provide storage facilities in two rooms.

Combination Possible
Closets, chests of drawers, dressing tables, radio cabinets, desks may be combined in one wall, arranged to the owner's specifications. They take the place of pieces of furniture and free space in the room for other purposes.

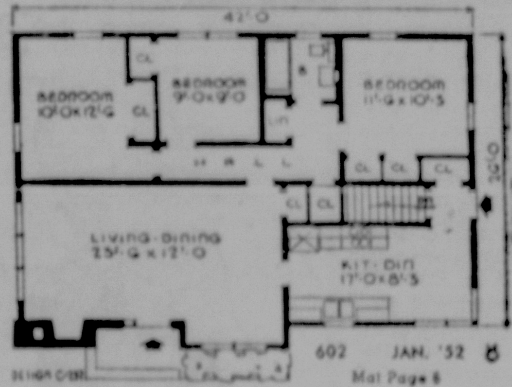

Since the partitions in many of the small homes now being built are required to carry little or no weight, a new flexibility has come into home planning. Storage walls fit well into this type of house. They also are useful in remodeling the big, empty spaces of many older dwellings into more compact rooms.

Heating Plant Needs Cleaning

As soon as the heating plant is shut down for the summer, it should be cleaned and repaired, it is suggested by the Construction Research Bureau, New York clearing house for building information. In a steam or hot water system, the boiler should be completely bled.

All soot and scale should be removed from interior surfaces of the furnace with a wire brush. Even gas forms scale which lowers heating plant efficiency. The smoke pipe should be examined for cracks and if any are found the pipe should be replaced, not repaired. Joints where the pipe enters the chimney should be made airtight.

All parts of a hot water system, including radiators, should be left full of water to prevent rusting. Fill the boiler to the top. In the fall, drain off the excess. A steam boiler should be filled to the height of the safety valve. Water already in the system should not be drained.

THE CRANSTON has a first floor plan consisting of living room, dinette, combination kitchen-dining, three bedrooms, bath and eight closets plus full basement. Bedrooms are all in rear, with living room and kitchen across front.

In kitchen, the sink is under the front window, stove and refrigerator on inside wall. A large dining space is provided in one end of kitchen with corner windows. A fireplace and dining bay feature the living room which has a two way view to front and side. Exterior finish is wide siding with stone chimney and entrance hall. The roof is dead level using pitch and gravel roofing and a two foot overhang. Other features are the open cornice at chimney, covered front entrance, planting area and floor box. Plan with gable also obtainable.

Dimensions are 42 feet by 26 feet. Area is 1,112 square feet and cubage 19,460.

For further information about THE CRANSTON, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. In Canada, the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, Box 1193, St. John's, New Brunswick.

Guard Against Cold Floors
Cold floors are an especially serious problem in homes with young children who constantly make the floors their indoor playground.

Some of the new heating devices have largely overcome this problem. In convactor heating, for example, cold floor-line air is drawn into the convactor, heated and then delivered into the room in a huge air that heats the entire room gently instead of by sharp, uncomfortable heat waves.

Especially important in homes with babies or young children is that temperatures at the convactor and in the most distant corner of the room are practically the same. Children can play comfortably on the floor, yet the balance of the room will not be overheated.

Porch Costs
An open porch costs about half as much to build as a room of the same size. A screened porch costs approximately two-thirds as much and if the porch is glassed in it will cost about the same as a room.

Avoid Painting In Hot Sun

Painting in the direct rays of the hot sun should be avoided for the good of the paint job as well as the comfort of the painter. Work on the outside of a house can be laid out so that the painter follows the movement of the sun. If the house faces east, the painter should start as early in the morning as possible on the west side, doing the east at a later hour. Early afternoon is the best time for working on the north side while the south side should be done late in the afternoon. Paint, of course, should never be applied to surfaces where night air has condensed and left a temporary film of moisture.

What Price Lot?

Cost of land should represent not much more nor less than 20 per cent of the total amount it is planned to spend on building a home, according to building industry economists. Thus, if a total expenditure of $15,000 is planned, the plot should not cost more than $3,000; the house $12,000.

Kiwanis Club Tour Wild Animal Farm

The Kiwanis Club of Stroudsburg met at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm, off Foxtown Hill, yesterday afternoon when they were served a picnic luncheon.

Following the luncheon the Kiwanians made the rounds of the farm having their hands full in petting and feeding the tame animals.

Claude Leister, operator of the farm, welcomed the guests and said there are 100 animals on display representing some 32 or 33 different species. The so-called nursery where the small animals are bottle-fed proved a real attraction also. Now in its fifth season, the farm is visited by approximately 50,000 persons annually, Mr. Leister said.

President Gilbert L. Smir urged the members to attend the Kiwanis sponsored Little Bigger baseball league games Friday night at 6:15 and Saturday at 2 p.m. at Gordon Giffels Field, Stroudsburg High School, and East Stroudsburg playground.

Edward Koontz, of the Indiana, Pa., club, and Earl Evans, Bethlehem, were guests.

Cynthia Kotz Wins Contest

Cynthia Kotz, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kotz, Easton RD 4, has been chosen to represent Schable's Bakery in a national contest to pick "Miss Sunbeam, 1952."

Nearly 120,000 ballots were cast in 1200 grocery stores that sell Schable's Sunbeam bread. Each ballot box displayed the pictures of the four finalists in Schable's contest who were chosen after a series of 13 elimination contests held in Easton, Bethlehem, Hellertown, Wind Gap, Stroudsburg, Pen Argyl in Pennsylvania and in Phillipsburg, Belvidere, Washington, Hackettstown and Clinton, New Jersey.

Little Miss Kotz will receive a $100 savings bond from Schable's Bakery and will have an opportunity to win additional prizes in the regional and national contests. The other three finalists in the local contest were Sharon Rose Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Johnson, Bethlehem; Linda Ann Otten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Otten, Phillipsburg, N. J., and Linda Lee Leigh-

Poultrymen Organize Association

First step toward the organization of a Monroe County Poultry Association were taken Monday night at a meeting in Chestnut Hill High School when James Ogden, of East Stroudsburg RD 1 was elected president.

Other officers endorsed are Elmer Veety of Hamilton Square vice president; Floyd Wilmoth, of Kunkletown, secretary-treasurer; Carl Michaels of the J. M. Wyckoff Feed Co., East Stroudsburg and Wendell Wicks of Eagle Valley, directors.

Arthur E. Ifft, county agent was named to serve in an advisory capacity. Further planning will occur July 29 when the directors convene.

General aims of the association, it was learned, are educational and promotional. Listed as proposed projects for next year are chicken barbecues, tours and an all-day educational meeting in the winter. The organization announced it will cooperate with the stated poultry federation in its activities. Presently the state group is active in promoting the establishment of a regional diagnostic laboratory for poultry diseases.

Sunday School Slated Outdoors

Bartonsville — Haviland Heller, superintendent of St. John's Lutheran Church Sunday School has announced that sessions of the school will be held on the church lawn Sunday.

Kunkletown Blouse Mill Foresees Bright Future

The forty-sixth of a series of articles dealing with industrial operations in Monroe County is presented today by The Daily Record. Also of the series is to acquaint all citizens with what is produced here; how it is made, the type of people and skills required in such production and the economic impact of such industry on this region.

By James B. Gaffney

One of the few blouse mills in the area to use double needle work in completing its product, Nation Wide Manufacturing Co., Inc., at Kunkletown, is enjoying current prosperity and looks forward to a bright future at its present location.

Operations started at the plant in the center of Kunkletown in January, 1951. At first only about 34 persons were employed. But since then the demand for their blouse has been increasing, the payroll has climbed to 50 and before long it is expected another ten persons will be engaged in production.

Matthew Duvo of Bangor is president of the corporation and Robert Sparrow of Wind Gap is secretary. Sparrow's brother, William, is the key man at the Kunkletown plant, serving in the capacity as plant manager.

With 15 years experience in this particular field of endeavor, Bill Sparrow proves his versatility by applying his know-how to repair of machinery when such repairs are necessary. Few mills, however, are able to cope with major repairs and when these breakdowns occur, the machines generally are fixed by experts who circulate through this central sector, location of the majority of blouse mills.

Working in harmony, the 50 employees turn out manifold sizes and styles of blouses but the main line is called "Dapper Duds" and Dan River cotton materials is used exclusively.

Taking plaids and broadcloth, the initial operation is stitching. After the blouses are sewed, buttons are inserted, blouses are trimmed and inspected, then pressed and finally packed in attractive cellophane casings and shipped to New York City for final distribution to stores throughout the nation.

Operations flow smoothly in the progressive style set-up by the owners. Material which is cut in New York first goes to the third and top floor of the building where the stitching of pockets and collars is completed. From there the blouses are sent by chute to the second floor where they are sewed, the buttons inserted and sent, again by chute, to the basement. Here the trimmers take off the excess thread, inspectors thoroughly examine the blouses and approved ones are pressed by three men operating electric irons. The packing operation concludes work in the mill.

In addition to the variety of plaids, plain blouses are finished in aqua, blue, white, yellow, pink, Navy blue, Kelly green and red. Sizes vary from blouses for children one year of age to size 46.

Extra machines always are kept ready for replacement in the event an operating machine breaks down. This keeps the flow of production steady and gives the owners a reserve to rely on.

Employees received about $2,500 weekly in payroll, which attests to the part Nation Wide is playing in the financial stability of the small community. Aside from a few persons who live in Wind Gap, the majority of workers live in Kunkletown or nearby. A car pool enables employees living any distance from the plant to report to work daily.

Bill Sparrow commended the workers highly in an interview. He expressed high regard for the cooperation and said the workmanship, which is top, is possible only through the unity of the corps of employees.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

50th Wedding Anniversary Of Mr. And Mrs. Elmer Stine

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stine, 708 Sarah St., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary yesterday, the occasion being observed with open house from 7 to 11 last night when scores of their friends from a wide territory called and expressed their good wishes.

The rooms on the first floor of the home resembled a flower garden with the large number of bouquets which had been sent the couple by their friends. Featured was a huge floral basket of golden and yellow flowers, the gift of their neighbors. These included gladioli, roses, chrysanthemums and baby breath.

The golden wedding bridal table was centered with a floral display of roses and carnations and yellow candles. There were two three-tier decorated wedding cakes. One of them was made by Mrs. Emma McCadden, of Syracuse, N. Y., a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Stine, which was embellished by golden ornaments.

Mr. and Mrs. Stine received a large number of gifts, including cash and flowers in honor of the event.

Mr. Stine is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Stine and was born in Mt. Bethel. He came to Monroe County in 1898 when he was employed by the International Boiler Works, E. Stroudsburg, for seven years. This was followed by a short spell with the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad at Reading. Returning to Stroudsburg in 1905 he entered the employ of the Erie company remaining with them until the plant closed in 1927. He continued in the company employ at Little Ferry, N. J., until 1930 when he retired.

Mrs. Stine is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Altenose, of Stroudsburg, spending all her life in the community. There were no children born to the union.

There were guests present for the open house from Syracuse, N. Y., Philadelphia, Mt. Bethel, Portland, Bangor, Pen Argyl and Stateford.

Around The Stroudsburgs

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Koontz, of Indiana, Pa., are guests of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. George, Marshalls Creek.

A card from H. Eloise Bryan, psychologist in the Stroudsburg schools, who is attending a workshop conference in Chicago, Ill., states she is enjoying the course which was just what she wanted. She said the weather was very hot.

Bobby Smale, of N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, is spending two days with Mr. and Mrs. Jacoby Cramer, 49 Hallett St., that borough.

Outing County Rep. Women At Resaca Falls Draws Crowd

The picnic of the Monroe Council of Republican Women, held at Resaca Falls Tuesday night was attended by approximately 300 members and guests when leaders in the county were the speakers. The three clubs in the county combined for the outing.

The place of meeting was made available by Thomas C. Buens, president of the Resaca Realty Co. with all the facilities which was appreciated.

The meeting opened with a covered dish supper which was served in the open, the shower having held off long enough to carry out this part of the program. The guests adjourned to a building on the property where the speakers were presented.

Mrs. J. Russell Custard, president of the Monroe County Council, presided and introduced Mrs. George Humphrey, president of the Mount Pocono Council, who in turn presented Rep. John S. Shotwell, of Effort, who told of his record in the legislature and was assured of the support of the council in his bid for re-election.

Mrs. Floyd Bachman presented her neighbor, State Senator Montgomery F. Crowe, who made a plea for harmony in the party and his candidates, U. S. Senator Edward Martin, Weldon Heyburn, Charles R. Barber, Russell Craig, Bethlehem, Congressional aspirant, and Mr. Shotwell.

Mrs. Sue E. Price, president of the Barrett Council, presented Dr. Herbert A. Lorenz, of Buck Hill Falls, chairman of the Citizens Committee for Eisenhower, who spoke at length extolling virtues of the general.

B. K. Williams of East Stroudsburg, chairman of the Monroe County Republican Committee and delegate to the national convention at Chicago last week was given a standing ovation by the guests. Mrs. Custard in her introductory declared "America needed more men of the caliber of Mr. Williams."

Mrs. Custard read a letter from Mrs. Russell Dixon, of Butler, president of the Pennsylvania State Council of Republican Women, in which it was told that Mrs. Foster Minnich, a past president of the Monroe County Council, had been honored by being named on the nominating committee of the state council. Appreciation was expressed by the guests for the recognition of the local organization.

The nominating committee for the Monroe County Council named by Mrs. Custard, as follows: Mrs. O. P. Hoffman, chairman; Mrs. William R. Toewe and Mrs. Ashton Burrows.

Mrs. Custard thanked the committees from the three Monroe County clubs for the successful manner in which the outing had been planned and carried out.

The tables were decorated by Mrs. Earl Primrose and Mrs. W. A. Rake with elephants with flags in the trunks, also with evergreens.

Arrangements have all been completed for the meeting of the Monroe County Garden Club at Buck Hill Falls today when a very large turnout of the members is anticipated by Mrs. Robert Miller, the president.

Members will meet at the main gate at 11 a.m. and will have lunch at 11:30. This will be followed by a hike through Jenkins Woods, starting at 12:30 with Thomas H. Knepp in charge.

Past Noble Grands

The Past Noble Grands of Rachel Broadhead Lodge, Degree of Rebekah, will hold a doggie roast tonight at 6:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Staples, Shawnee-on-Delaware.

Quintet Take Tour To Coast And Canada

Mrs. Mary Fleming, of Hawley; Miss Helen Hughes, Mrs. Marie Carlton, Miss Esther Vesko and Miss Helen Grant, all of East Stroudsburg, have arrived home from an extended tour to the west coast and Canada.

They joined the tour at Chicago June 29 and visited the Grand Canyon, spent two days in Los Angeles and Hollywood, Cal., visited Yosemite Park and the great Red Woods. They were also in San Francisco, Cal., two days.

They made the trip up the Columbia River to Portland, Ore., cruised Puget Sound, stopped at Victoria, the Canadian Rockies and stayed at Lake Louise and Ramf Springs, then back to Chicago, and home, July 13, greatly pleased with the trip.

Songfest At Laurel Grove Inn Tonight

Canadensis — A songfest will be held in the recreation parlor of Laurel Grove Inn, this place, tonight starting at 9 sponsored by nine of the smaller hotels of the area. Zeno Stoudt, who specializes in programs of this nature will be master of ceremonies and director.

Audience participation is featured in the program presented by Mr. Stoudt, who also uses slides on a screen illustrating the songs and also the words making it possible for everyone to take part in the program, which includes tongue and brain twisters.

Mr. Stoudt, who has spent a number of years in the unique art of entertainment spends the winter season in the West as a rule coming East for the summer season. He plays the guitar and banjo.

The hotels which are cooperating in the songfest, guests of which are welcome to participate are: Laurel Grove Inn, The Pines, The Pinetree, The Woodside, Bender's Village Inn, Spruce Mountain House, Brookview Manor, Far View House and Pine Knob Inn.

OES Meeting In Cherry Valley

Monroe County Chapter of Order of Eastern Star will hold a covered dish luncheon for members and their friends beginning at 1 p. m. today at the home of Mrs. Clementine Crossdale, Cherry Valley. Those attending are asked to bring their own table service. Cards will be enjoyed following the luncheon.

GLADYS LAU, of Buffalo, N. Y., this week's winner of the bathing beauty contest at Kamp Karamac, opposite Delaware Water Gap. This is a weekly competition, for which the winner receives a free weekend at the camp and competes for the annual title of Miss Karamac, 1952. (Photo by Gottchalk)

"Too Many Cookbooks." That's the lament that headed an article in the May 19th issue of Newsweek magazine. It seems that at the beginning of 1952 there were 250 cookbooks published in the United States. By spring, another 40 had made their appearance. One of these was "Elsie's Cookbook"—a collection of recipes endorsed by the Borden cow, no less, with the editorial assistance of Harry Botsford. The original edition sold at $3, but I noticed yesterday that a paper-bound copy is now offered at $1, in our book department. Dialogues between Elsie and Elmer brighten up a text that emphasizes practical ideas for growing families.

Florence Fredmore of our book and stationery department also calls attention to the newly published "Chinese Cook Book" by Wallace Yee Hong selling at $3, and offering numerous exotic recipes for those who like food that is definitely not run-of-the-mill.

An all-round favorite with many local brides, who call it the most helpful book they own, is the Rombauer-Becker edition—"The Joy of Cooking", priced at $3.95. And at 35c there's a valuable little paper covered "Pennsylvania Dutch Cook Book" that makes an attractive and useful souvenir for visitors to this section. This is a definite "best seller" with Wyckoff's, Florence says, and she's stocked a gross this time to keep up with the demands.

There may well be too many cookbooks — I don't know. But there are a great many people, don't forget, who indulge in eating as a thrice daily habit. Something of which I'm definitely in flavor.

HERE AND THERE

(I Hear and Store)
at such things as: Those smile provoking ceramic roosters, jaunty and colorful, with long necks and sprinkler tops, to be used in dampening clothes. These sell at $1.98 in Gifts, and are guaranteed to brighten a dull chore — an achievement which, in itself, is something to crow about. . . . The plastic bill folds in Bea Gorgy's department, selling at $1 and priced until recently at $1 and $1.50. Pretty, unusual colors are star-spangled, polka-dotted, plain, or patterned in what appears to be braided scrolls. . . . Croquet sets, handsome and sturdy at $7.95 and up. Every family should have one really — it's such a wonderful way for everyone to share in a simple summer sport. . . . The new line of Christmas cards by Norcross that bear the signature "Mr. and Mrs.", "The Three of Us" and "The Four of Us". A cute way for a family to be strictly personal with friends through the years — even while it's on the increase. . . . And the poem written by the precocious geranium in my office, begging for water. Such a BRIGHT flower. My undying gratitude to the "ghost writer—waterer" !!!

County-Bred Mice Used In Research

mice as a part of the business is a second venture which involves the raising of guinea pigs for research. Pigs are kept in a separate "house" and, unlike the mice, are "completely tame" animals. Although the mice have been known to bite when they had the chance, the white guinea pigs seldom bite even when agitated.

The pigs are also extremely prolific. When first born the animals measure about three inches in length. They eat "any kind of greens" but seem to prefer common cut grass.

For some unknown biological reason there is "usually one still-born in each litter of pigs."

Male guinea pigs are more desirable as breeders in a number of ways. They seldom fight among themselves and more important

PIGS IS PIGS—and at Brookside Farm they're darned glad of it. With all due respect to Ellis Parker Butler's amusing account of what happened when a crate of guinea pigs was left at an express office, Glenn Warner and his associates are happy about the prolific aspects of the guinea pig's makeup. Here a group of the pigs digs into a mess of greens, their favorite food.

—their life expectancy is considerably higher.

The male pig lasts from six to seven years—the mouse slightly less than one.

During the years since Brookside Farm first became a full-time concern, the Warners have been forced to meet numerous economic and physical dangers.

One of these factors killed off nearly 3,000 white mice and a few pigs two weeks ago.

This wholesale destruction occurred during the county's first drastic heat wave. Soaring temperatures and suffocating air took the lives of the rodents before anything could be done to remedy the heat conditions in the sheds.

Exhaust fans have now been installed in both sheds which constantly pull fresh air through the building and create a balance between the mercury inside and the sweltering heat outside.

So far as Glenn Warner is concerned, guinea pigs are much better than are their closest competitor—the hamster. The latter animal was found to be ferocious and belligerent during a period when the farm tried to raise them. For this reason, and others, the hamster was discarded in favor of the more even-tempered white pig.

Warner is a firm believer in the fact that idealism is an important part of any business.

With distinct pride he points to the many contributions made by the research animals in pioneering new medicines and in attempts to discover and trace the growth of cancer.

Guinea pigs are used, also, in testing cosmetics. Since the pig's skin is even more sensitive than the human skin of even the fairest lady the cosmetic manufacturers "try out" new creams, deodorants and lipsticks on the animal first.

If it doesn't hurt the guinea pig there's a good chance it can't possibly damage the comparatively tough tissues of the American female.

Obitz Wins Pro-Sweeps At Shawnee

Shawnee-on-Delaware — Harry Obitz, popular head pro at Shawnee Inn and Country Club, came through when the chips were down yesterday to take top prize money in the pro-sweeps, a part of the golf week celebration now underway at the local resort. Obitz toured the rolling Shawnee layout in five-under par figures for the two-day tournament.

A four under par 68 in yesterday's round gave jovial Harry a five-under par 139 for the 36-holes. He carded a one-under-par in the first round Tuesday. For his two day effort Obitz took $450 in prize money, $50 for his top round yesterday and $400 for leading the field in the 36-holes test.

Fourth Place

Bill Doyle, Iron Rock G. C., Pennsylvania, N. J., who won $50 for his three-under-par 35, 34—69 round Tuesday slipped to a 74 yesterday and finished in fourth place with a 143 aggregate.

Walter Brickley, Burlington County C. C., who scored a hole-in-one on the 16th during a practice round Monday; Marty Lyon, Llanerch, and John Bove, Mid-Pines, also carded sub-par rounds yesterday. Brickley had 36.33 for a 69. Both Lyons and Bove registered 71's.

Brickley's 69 yesterday gave him second place money in the 36-holes sweep. Al Keeping, Gulph Mills, with 142; Bill Doyle, Iron Rock, with 143 and Ted Bickel, Springhaven, and Horace Smith, Moorestown, with 144's, also were in the top money bracket.

Low gross and low net honors in the mixed Scotch foursome combined handicap tournament were divided between Mr. and Mrs. John Stubblefield, Shawnee, and their partners. John Stubblefield paired with Mrs. Len Sheppard, wife of Lu Lu C. C. pro to win low gross honors with a 78. Mrs. Stubblefield and Bob Rahe, Ardmore, won low net with a 38. They had a 51 combined handicap.

New Form Of Baseball Proves Popular At Split Rock Lodge

Split Rock, Pa.—Baseball played on water is the newest diversion of sports-minded vacationists at Split Rock Lodge, popular resort on the shores of Lake Harmony. This exciting game, called aquaball, was introduced a few weeks ago as a novel addition to the athletic program and already has become one of the most popular activities at the resort.

In this aquatic version of our national pastime, the placid waters of Lake Harmony are the playing field and brightly-colored floats take the place of such baseball fixtures as the pitcher's mound, home plate, and the three bases. A "base-runner" must depend upon his swimming ability rather than his speed as foot in advancing from one base to another, and the batters must do the same in chasing the ball.

Men and women guests at the Lodge form the teams, each of which has seven players; a pitcher, a catcher, three infielders, and two outfielders. There are individual floats for all members of the defensive team, and the catcher shares his float with the batter. Of course, there are umpires, too—from one to three, depending upon the number of volunteers. A complete game lasts three innings, and extra innings are played if required to break a tie score.

Aquaball is only one of many sports scheduled at Split Rock Lodge for the enjoyment of players and spectators. Other favorite outdoor activities include archery, boating, riding, tennis, skeet shooting, golf, croquet, softball, hiking, and the summer skiing classes conducted by Gosta Johnson, director of the famous Big Boulder Ski school.

Red Sox Decision Pale Hose

Boston, (AP)—The Boston Red Sox yesterday whipped ex-teammate Joe Dobson of the Chicago White Sox, 7-3. "Hoot" Evers contributed a two-run homer and Billy Goodman a two-run double to the 13-hit Boston attack.

Evers' homer, his fifth of the season, came in the second inning after Goodman had been walked with one out. Goodman's two-bagger came in the third, during which the Red Sox scored four times before Dobson was replaced by Lou Kretlow. That right-hander managed to retire the side with the bases loaded.

Scoring

Singles by Neely Fox, a walk to Sam Mele and Eddie Robinson's two-bagger gave the White Sox a first inning run. They added their remaining markers in the seventh when "Minnie" Minoso and Mele connected for consecutive doubles after Hector Rodriguez singled.

Phillies Edges Pirates, 8-7

Pittsburgh, (AP)—Paced by Connie Ryan's four hits, including his eighth homer of the season, the Philadelphia Phillies edged out an 8-7 victory over the cellar-dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday in a slam-bang game marked by 10 extra-base blows.

It was the Buc's fifth straight loss and the second of a four-game series with the Phils.

Winner

Robin Roberts won his 13th game against six defeats although he had to have help in the ninth inning from Andy Hansen after George Methovich blasted a two-run homer his third of the year.

Little Murry Dickson was charged with his 14th loss against only six victories. Ted Wilks relieved him in the ninth.

Legionnaires To Convene On Saturday

The third annual convention of the 30th District, Department of Pennsylvania American Legion, will be held Saturday, July 19, at George N. Kemp post No. 346, East Stroudsburg.

Delegates from Carbon, Northampton and Monroe counties will be in attendance.

Officers of the "convention corporation" are Melvin McElwain, Rudolph Biltz Sr., Bernard C. Rowe and Vincent Marek Jr.

Committee chairmen include the following: Louis DePaul, registration; Elmer Heffer and Sam Everett, reception; Edwin H. Strickler, distinguished guests; Leo Achterman, ways and means; Adolph Locher, publicity; Paul Berner, program; Claude Mader, concessions; Foster Gould, entertainment; Amos Bishong, house and Gertrude Berner, auxiliary co-operative.

Named to the advisory committee were Earl Palmer, Delbert Berger, Peter Tyerman, Adolph Locher and Arthur Shafer.

At Reisenwitz, Foster Gould, William Murphy, Layton Milman, Jesse Serfass, Fred Fullmer, William Alberts, William Quinn and Glenmore Hayes comprise the general committee.

Convention registration will begin Saturday at 8:30 a.m. and will continue one hour.

The meeting opens at 9:30 a.m. and will last until 12:30 p.m. Delegate caucuses will be held from 2 to 5 p.m.

A parade is slated for 7 p.m. and a special dance will be held in the Legion auditorium at 10 p.m. with music by Elwood E. LaBar and his western band.

Walter Sees Pennsylvanians Inclined Toward Stevenson

"There is a segment of our delegation which is for Sen. Kefauver," he admitted. To this statement he added a powerful qualification: "I'm afraid they are 'for' Kefauver for the same reason the Republicans nominated Gen. Eisenhower—they think he has 'vote appeal'."

In his estimate of the Illinois governor, Rep. Walter is in agreement with at least one other Pennsylvania delegate—Stroudsburg lawyer Harold Edwards who told The Daily Record this week that his "first choice for the nomination" would be Stevenson.

Vote-wise, Walter's one-half vote could not be considered decisive in the case of a close race. The representative's greatest influence will be felt in the drive to "draft" Stevenson before an actual ballot is cast—if such a movement develops.

The possibility of such a "draft" seemed to be somewhat more likely following Walter's statement.

Stevenson's name has brought favorable comment from President Truman and other party leaders since the governor was first mentioned as a "potential" two months ago.

Rep. Walter, who is known in Congressional circles for his independence of thought on legislative matters, has broken with the administration a number of times during his service in the House.

The most recent example of this was the fight he staged on behalf of an immigration bill co-authored by himself and Pat McCarran of Nevada.

Walter led the House huddle to override President Truman's veto of the bill.

The Eastern Democrat has also served on the House Un-American Activities Committee as ranking member and in a similar capacity on the Judiciary Committee of that body.

During his stint with the anti-Red group, Walter had a chance to observe the performance of junior congressman Richard Nixon of California who was a minority member.

Walter characterized Nixon as

Mrs. Richard Rinker

Mrs. Ora Lesh of Kellersville entertained as dinner guests recently Dr. Charles W. Kitts of Philadelphia and Rev. and Mrs. Clyde Levergood of Cherry Valley.

The committee of Lutheran and Reformed members of Hamilton Church are sponsoring a picnic a "hard-working, conscientious, fine young American."

Nixon is now the vice-presidential candidate on the Republican ticket.

Rep. Walter is expected to leave for the Chicago convention site on Friday.

His secretary, Mrs. Helen Sutton, who will serve as an alternate delegate will also attend the convention.
